4. The regiment is not motorized. It has only four old German trucks, three motorcycles and two Skoda passenger cars.
5. In Oct 1952 and 1953 the regiment received 300 to 350 recruits. They were not allowed to leave the barracks before the new year. Near the barracks is an exercise area to which the men marched daily. Firing exercises with live ammunition were very seldom held, and there were few alarms.
6. At the same barracks there was held during the summer and fall an AT training school in which formations from several rifle regiments participated. The training personnel was 30 to 35 men, and the number of trainees was 300 to 320. Courses included maintenance of AT guns, rocket AT weapons, and close-in AT work with grenades.
